The Express extends sympathy to editor Suggs of the Ardmoreite in loss of a daughter, Mrs. Lokey, by death.

A day or two since the Express published a constitution of league for a single statehood promoters, the object being to promote the plan of cooperating with Oklahoma in seeking admission as one state at the coming short session of congress. If any one agrees with the object let them come to this office and sign the constitution and thus start the ball to rolling. There is no scheme, no politics, nor any admission fee, except voluntary, the only object being to effect an organization to work with Oklahoma in securing a betterment of conditions in both territories, and especially in this one.

There is but little use to put up any argument on the question. All know our conditions, and anything looking in the direction of a better state of affairs will be worth working for.

Life is too short and we have too much to do to carry this paper around to get signatures, but would be happy to show the paper and get your signature. If you favor the movement come in and sign.

There is much circulation being given to and comment made on an interview purporting to be from Col. Breckenridge in which he is quoted as saying "No treaty will hinder or retard the U. S. Government determines to make a change in territorial affairs." If Col. Breckenridge said so referring to the Creek and Cherokee countries. They have had their days of grace in which to make a treaty and voluntarily and stubbornly "slept on their chances," so who could blame the U. S. Government should it decide to inaugurate a change up there. But with the Choctaws and Chickasaws the case is entirely different. The U. S. Government is under treaty obligations with time limited and granted the tribal government to exist. We do not believe as an officer of said government, Col. Breckenridge would make a statement that would throw such a reflection upon the moral and legal obligation of his government. The United States will uphold her intelligence and show forth her sense of moral obligation by adhering to the treaty—the Atoka Agreement—Indian Citizen.

Suit Against Court Citizens.

There was filed in the United States court at South McAlester Monday a suit involving property and lands of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians valued at approximately $20,000,000 and the citizenship claims of some 4,000 persons commonly known as court citizens. G. W. Dukes and D. H. Johnson, principal chief and governor respectively of the Choctaws and Chickasaws, and some fifty other leading members of the tribe, including ex-Govs. Green McCurtain, P. S. Mosley, Wm. M. Guy, R. M. Harris, National Delegate, J. S. Stanley and Holmes Colbert are the plaintiffs, and the Arnolds and Brazells and all other court citizens are defendants. Under the act of June 10, 1896, these persons, it is stated, rushed into the Indian Territory from the surrounding states and filed their application for applications for citizenship.

This suit is a bill in equity, preparing that such decrees be declared void and that these claimants be perpetually enjoined from seeking to enforce them against the property of the tribe or from asserting any rights of citizenship. It is filed by Mansfield, McMurray and Cornish, general attorneys for the Choctaws and Chickasaws, and D. O. McCurtain on behalf of the Choctaw nation. It has been in course of preparation for the past several months and is the culmination of the plans of the tribes to defeat what they allege to be the fraudulent citizenship claims of these persons.

This suit again involves the whole class of claimants in litigation and has been specially prepared and the pleadings drawn with a view to taking it as rapidly as possible to the supreme court of the United States.

Since these persons have been enrolled or empowered by the government to assert rights of citizenship it is said the suit will not in any way retard the work of allotment, as these claimants will be related to the courts for remedy and the work of allotment proceed under the Atoka agreement.

One of the most interesting features of the suit is that Judge Clayton is disqualified to hear it, he having represented the Arnolds, the leading defendants, in their original application for citizenship. This particular case was tried by Judge Springer a year ago.
